New family health teams

► First multidisciplinary team in Orléans, three more coming to region by end of August

Nine new "family health teams" opening this year in the Ottawa region will mean 18,000 more people will now have access to a family doctor, says Ontario's health minister.

"We've made wonderful progress. 1.3 million more Ontarians have access to primary care, but there are still parts of the province where it is a problem," said Deb Matthews, minister of Health and Long-Term Care, at a press conference where she announced all the new clinics operating with the family-health-team model will be open in the area by the end of the summer.

Matthews made the announcement at a clinic in Orléans on Innes Road that will be converting to the new health-care model. Officials at the centre said they are adding a social worker and psychologist to their team with provincial funding and will accept 2,000 new patients over the coming year.

"It's a very different model from primary care. It's physicians working in a group setting with other health professionals such as nurse practitioners, dieticians and social workers," said Dr. Caitlin Schwartz, the lead physician at a family health team opening in Barrhaven.

Ontario to offer loans to non-profits

► Province will do a risk assessment on non-profit organizations before lending them money, Infrastructure Minister Bob Chiarelli says

► Acting CEO of the National Capital Region YMCA-YWCA Deirdre Speers, left, Infrastructure Minister Bob Chiarelli and Ottawa Centre MPP Yasir Naqvi hold a press conference announcing that some non-profit organizations, such as the YMCA, will be able to access the Infrastructure Ontario Loan Program.

JESSICA SMITH
@METRONEWS.CA

The provincial government will now offer low-interest infrastructure loans to non-profit groups, including some that would have trouble borrowing money from the private sector.

Infrastructure Minister Bob Chiarelli announced the change to the Infrastructure Ontario Loan Program yesterday at the Metro Central YMCA on Argyle Street.

"There are many lending institutions that will shy away from it because they don't understand the nature of the business, particularly if it's a small organization." INFRASTRUCTURE MINISTER BOB CHIARELLI

The program offers loans to municipalities, universities and other public sector bodies for infrastructure projects, but will now include non-profit organizations that offer health and social services, supportive housing or sports and recreation programs.

Acting National Capital

Region YMCA-YWCA CEO Deirdre Speers said the YMCA will be applying to the loan program for social housing and recreation programs.

"The government program is much more affordable for us than the open-market loans," she said.

"In a sense, it's flow-through money. Infrastructure Ontario has the capacity to borrow these funds and it flows to the (non-profit) organizations on terms that are better than they would receive in the marketplace, if they could receive them at all," said Chiarelli.

Chiarelli said the government was inspired to expand the program when Wabano Centre for Aboriginal Health recently asked about getting a loan from the program.

Province won't change Cancon rules for Ottawa LRT project

The province won't change a policy that requires Ottawa's LRT trains to be at least partly built in Canada, even though foreign firms have "informally" asked the province to make an exception, Ontario's infrastructure minister said yesterday.

City council will vote on the LRT project Thursday. Part of the financial plan, if approved, is accepting $600 million from the province for the LRT construction. That means a provincial rule that requires 25 per cent of the trains (by cost) are manufactured in Canada will apply.

"That's what the rule is and that's the way the rule is going to stay," said Infrastructure Minister Bob Chiarelli.

Siemens released a written statement to the Ottawa Business Journal saying, "Only Bombardier has a facility in Canada. All other suppliers will have to ramp up a facility, produce the LRT vehicles, and ramp down the facility."

Chiarelli said the intention of the rule isn't to favour Bombardier or "any one specific manufacturer." He added that he would welcome even temporary manufacturing jobs in Canada.

"If Siemens or any other manufacturer decides to set up temporary manufacturing here, they might just decide to stay here, and they would become permanent jobs."

New daycare model doesn't meet greatest need: Coun.

A national child-care company is bringing a new daycare model to the capital — one that recruits corporate clients, which then offer daycare spaces as employee benefits.

Kids & Company held an open house at its new location at 11 Hines Rd., in the Kanata North Business Park yesterday.

The company decided to locate in Kanata in response to requests from local families and businesses, said Victoria Sopik, 300 families are seeking subsidized child care in Kanata North alone.

founder and CEO of the Toronto-based child-care chain.

The firm is planning to open another daycare next spring on Bank Street near the downtown core.

"We really like the Ottawa area and we're looking forward to opening more (daycares)," she said. "We've seen the huge need."

The daycare will occupy 465 square metres of space in a high-tech office building, offering 60 spaces for children up to five years old.

The demand for child care is growing in Ottawa, said Sopik.

But while Kids & Company will provide more options for parents, it won't address the area's greatest need for child care, said Kanata North Coun. Marianne Wilkinson.

"The biggest problem we have is kids who need subsidized spaces," said Wilkinson.

The subsidies allow parents to pay anywhere from nothing to $10 a day for child care, said Wilkinson, with the provincial government paying 80 per cent of the cost and the rest covered by the municipality.

► Kanata North Coun. Marianne Wilkinson

"There's only enough money to subsidize so many children," said Wilkinson. "And they're all used up." KANATA KOURIER

Statehood vote just PR: Baird

► Says Palestinian state must be result of negotiations

Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird says it would be meaningless if the United Nations General Assembly recognized Palestinian statehood this fall.

Baird is dismissing the Palestinian campaign to win recognition at the UN in a September vote as a public-relations move.

"We think it's distinctly unhelpful to seek a public-relations declaration within the UN General Assembly. Obviously, it would be without any meaning," Baird said yesterday.

Baird noted that only a vote of the Security Council would finalize the matter. "We believe that statehood should be the product of a negotiated permanent peace with security for both the Palestinian and Israeli people."

Boycott

Baird also confirmed Canada is boycotting the UN Conference on Disarmament because North Korea has assumed the rotating chairmanship.

► "It's absurd, and it's a blow to meaningful efforts at worldwide disarmament," said Baird.

He said he'd be thrilled to welcome a new Palestinian state, but only after peaceful negotiations with Israel. Baird also affirmed the Harper government's unwavering support for the Jewish state, which has sparked criticism in the past.

New York prepares for same-sex marriages, adoptions

First comes love, then comes marriage. Now adoption lawyers and agencies in New York say they're getting ready for a baby boom as same-sex couples emboldened by the state's new gay marriage law take the next step and try to adopt children.

New York will allow same-sex marriages beginning July 24, becoming the most populous U.S. state to legalize such weddings. Thousands of couples are expected to tie the knot.

The state already permits unmarried couples, both gay and straight, to adopt children. But a wedding ring is an important milestone in a relationship — and can also bolster a couple's case as they try to impress social workers, adoption agencies and birth mothers during the often competitive adoption process, couples and adoption experts say. Jaycee Dugard, the California woman kidnapped in 1991, talked through tears about both the pain and determination she felt as she gave birth to her captor's child in his backyard while she was still just a girl.

Dugard was clear and composed throughout the interview with ABC News' Diane Sawyer on her show Primetime that aired Sunday night, but grew emotional when she talked about seeing the first of two girls fathered by Phillip Garrido.

"It was very painful," said Dugard, 31, as tears

She described walking to the school bus stop on the day of a fifth-grade field trip and being zapped with a stun gun on a South Lake Tahoe street at age 11.

She said she heard Garrido laughing and telling his wife Nancy Garrido "I can't believe we got away with it," calling the moment "the most horrible moment in your life, times 10."

Without going into many details, Dugard talked about the long, drug-fueled sex sessions Garrido would put her through, and said that to her great confusion he would cry afterward.

"He would tell me what an awful man he was," Dugard said. She said she would think that despite her own terrible pain, "I have to comfort him?"

Her mother, Terry Probyn, who was interviewed by Sawyer alongside her daughter, said she was full of rage.

Looking at her daughter, Probyn said, "He stole your childhood, he stole your adolescence, he stole your high school proms, and pictures and memories."

Feds won't help provinces with long-gun registries

The federal government says it won't help provinces thinking of creating their own long-gun registry, whether in the form of cash or even records from the soon-to-be-dismantled federal database.

Child shot and killed on Alberta reserve

A five-year-old child has been shot and killed on an Alberta reserve known for its gang violence.

RCMP were called to a home at the Samson Cree First Nation townsite near Hobbema, about 100 kilometres south of Edmonton early yesterday morning.

Neighbour Shane Saddleback said he heard the pop of four or five gunshots. He believes it was a boy in the home who was killed.

Independent Internet providers slowing traffic, hearing told

► CRTC reviewing implications of phone, cable giants charging independent web providers for use of networks

Independent Internet providers are significant contributors to network congestion, and the price they pay to large companies should reflect their usage, BCE Inc. told a regulatory hearing yesterday.

Mirko Bibic, a senior vice-president for BCE Inc., said wholesale independent service providers make up 17 per cent of users in Ontario and Quebec and drive 29 per cent of total traffic on Bell's network in those provinces.

"This is significant," Bibic told the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission. "No single user or wholesale customer is the cause of congestion. But clearly, wholesale users contribute a disproportionate share of total traffic and, by extension, congestion," Bibic said.

The CRTC is reviewing how BCE's Bell Canada and other large network providers charge independent Internet providers for the use of their networks.

The federal regulator launched the review after a social media campaign against a previous CRTC decision, which would have forced independent ISPs to charge their retail customers for usage above a ceiling — as large providers do. THE CANADIAN PRESS

HOT FLINGS EVENTUALLY COOL OFF

SHE SAYS ...

JESSICA NAPIER
METRO

There is just something about the heat that wreaks havoc on our hormones. Long, temperate nights and a general lack of clothing can cause perfectly logical individuals to develop an instantaneous infatuation with one another. And, thus, a summer romance is born.

Adorable new couples become high on the potential of what could be without one rational thought towards what will happen come fall. Life becomes a movie montage of adorable date activities: Tandem bicycling in the park, picnics on the beach, sunset walks, fireworks under the stars.

But all of this fun-in-the-sun frolicking can't last forever. Don't kid yourself; your love is not a Nicholas Sparks novel.

The summer romance, like its cousin, the vacation romance, has a built-in expiry date. Like a pair of white jeans, the relationship is best enjoyed before Labour Day.

Oh sure, you might have convinced yourself this is the real deal, but more often than not that sizzle burns out as soon as the temperature starts to drop. Very few trysts translate into long-term relationships. Once the easy, breezy days of summer are over, integrating each other into your real (read: Not so care-free) lives can be problematic. Just look at what Sandy and Danny went through when they brought their summer lovin' back to school in Grease.

A fling, by its very nature, means you will be flung to the curb at some point. One minute you're handholding in matching khakis like a smug J. Crew catalogue couple and the next, you're packing up your summer wardrobe and wondering why you ever thought it could last.

Ultimately, it's best to keep these sun-soaked romances as casual as the beachwear in which they began. Manage your expectations and proceed with caution. With every foray into summer love comes a bittersweet sensation of wanting it to last forever, but knowing it never will.

When September arrives and reality is restored, you're sure to feel a little melancholy over the demise of your doomed-from-the-start romance. In the days following those tearful goodbyes it's important to remind yourself that you aren't really mourning the loss of some great love, but the feeling of endless summer and the possibility of what could have been.

And as your tan lines start to fade, so will your heartbreak. You will come to realize that the beauty of summer romances is that they are fleeting; as short and sweet as the season itself.

MADRID, Spain. Doctors in Spain have carried out the world's first double leg transplant, giving new lower limbs to a patient who lost both legs at mid-thigh in an accident, officials said yesterday.

The Valencia regional government said the surgical team was led by Dr. Pedro Cavadas, who, in 2009, carried out Spain's first face transplant — the first anywhere to include a new tongue and jaw.

The government statement said the operation at La Fe Hospital in Valencia was extremely complex and Cavadas will wait at least 48 hours to release more information.

"Today we can say a landmark has been reached," said Dr. Rafael Matesanz, director of the National Transplant Organization. Another official at the organization, speaking on condition of anonymity, would not give details as to how the patient is doing, other than to say if the limbs are rejected this will happen more or less immediately. He added it will be a month or so before doctors know how successful the surgery has been.

Stork was lucky to get off the ground

A Texas mom expected a big baby, but nothing like this: 16 pounds, 1 ounce (7.3 kilograms).

Janet Johnson remained in an East Texas hospital yesterday after giving birth to what her doctors called one of the biggest newborns they have ever seen. She was awaiting word from the state to see whether her son, JaMichael Brown, ranked among the biggest births in Texas history.

JaMichael was born Friday at Good Shepherd Medical Center in Longview, Texas. Johnson has gestational diabetes, which results in bigger newborns for many mothers. Yet doctors had estimated JaMichael would be around 12 pounds (5.5 kilograms) prior to the caesarean birth.

Johnson hopes to take JaMichael home this week — and return his newborn clothes that won't fit. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pooh's chance to shine

► Veteran Disney animator, Burny Mattinson, shares his adventures with the infamous Walt Disney ► New Winnie the Pooh flick brings Mattinson's old toy to life on the big screen

SCENE@METRONWS.CA

For most people, Walt Disney is a brand name, or a flickering black-and-white image best remembered for hosting the Disneyland series throughout the 1960s. But for animator Burny Mattinson he was a real living, breathing person.

"I first met him as a traffic boy when I first came to the studio," said Mattinson, a Disney employee since 1953. "I was in the elevator and he stepped in. I said, 'Good morning Mr. Disney.'

He looked at me with a cocked eyebrow and said, 'It's Walt, son.' That was my first adventure with him."

Mattinson had many adventures in the studio, including working on Aladdin, Beauty & the Beast and the original Winnie the Pooh shorts in 1964 and '74. Those shorts were wildly popular, but were originally planned as a feature film. Mattinson remembers watching the rough cut of the film with Disney.

"He came out afterwards and said, 'You know, I think we should cut our losses. I don't think audiences are going to like this kind of humour. It's too mild. Let's put it out as a featurette.' So we cut it to twenty minutes and lost a lot of footage. We put it out as Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree and it did very well, and Walt said, 'Well we have the rest of this footage, let's put it out as A Blustery Day. Which we did and it won an Academy Award the following year.'

Recently Mattinson's career came full circle when he was approached to help relaunch the Pooh Bear and his friends from the Hundred Acre Woods. The result is Winnie the Pooh, a movie Mattinson says, "is kind of like visiting an old friendly family you've grown up with."

Mattinson has another family connection to the film. The movie's opening moments are live action, featuring a Winnie the Pooh stuffed doll his wife made in 1964. It was set to be used in the 1964 movie, but when it wasn't he gave it to his children.

"My kids played with it," he says, "and their kids played with it. It's kind of raggedy; it's gotten a lot of patina of age on it but then when the bosses said they were going to shoot a new live action opening I brought it in and showed it to them and they said, 'Yes! That's it.' It's finally gotten its chance."

Dealing with those stressful summers

► Those middle months are full of change and not everybody knows how to understand the pressures ► Metro speaks with an expert to get tips on how to deal with instability in life

CELIA MILNE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Not everyone loves the lazy days of summer.

Early July is a time for change: School is over, holidays are upon us, routines are disrupted. Some people have difficulty dealing with the loss of structured time that keeps them feeling safe throughout the year.

Learning how to deal with change is all about having a strong self-image, says Dr. Albert de Goias, a Toronto-based counselor on mood and behavioural disorders. He has recently launched a website dedicated to understanding and dealing with change (go to understandingchange.org).

"Build a powerful and stable sense of self so that you can approach stress, disruption, or even stagnancy with a sense of creativity, purpose, and self-respect," he says.

If you define yourself by your money, possessions, clothes, appearance or status, chances are, you won't be strong when any of these things are taken

Tips

Resilient people are better able to deal with change and disruption than non-resilient people. Here are some tips adapted from the Mayo Clinic on becoming more resilient:

- Get connected: Build supportive relationships with family and friends
- Find meaning in your life: Develop a sense of purpose beyond appearances
- Laugh: Find humour, even in stressful situations
- Maintain perspective: Write down your worries and see if they are rational away, he believes.

When change occurs or boredom sets in, some people deal with it by dwelling on problems, feeling victimized, becoming overwhelmed and turning to alcohol and drugs.

"Emotional angst is part of life," says de Goias. "It does not have to proceed to depression and addiction if we realize that it comes whenever we have a situation we feel is beyond us or when we feel lost. It can be 'blocked at the pass' simply by knowing how to see our stresses as stimulants to personal growth."

His advice? "Be a tourist in your own town," he says. "Do cultural things, explore life with the curiosity of a child. Understand change as the energy that drives life, and realize there is no such thing as stability."

How the sun damages the skin and causes premature aging and generally causes worse health.

"Sun exposure ages our skin faster than any other element. Anyone who wishes to prevent wrinkles and maintain an even skin tone must wear an SPF of at least 30 everyday no matter where they live or their daily routine. Sun damage doesn't occur just from lying on the beach while vacationing in the Caribbean. It happens all the time. Winter and summer, sunshine and rain. Getting kids active earlier

British government calling for child health programs

In a new campaign against obesity, the British government issued guidelines on Monday saying that children under the age of five — including those who can't even walk yet — should exercise every day.

In its first such guidelines for children that young, the health department said kids under five who can walk should be physically active for at least three hours a day. Officials also said parents should reduce the amount of time such kids spend being sedentary while watching television or being strapped in a stroller.

The three hours of activity should be spread throughout the day. Officials said the children's daily dose of exercise is likely to be met simply through playing but could also include activities such as walking to school.

For babies who can't walk yet, the government said physical activity should be encouraged from birth, including infants playing on their stomachs or having swimming sessions with their parents. The government said children's individual physical and mental abilities should be considered when interpreting the advice.

"It's vital that parents introduce children to fun and physically active pastimes to help prevent them becoming obese children, who are likely to become obese adults at risk of heart disease, diabetes and some cancers," Maura Gillespie, head of policy and advocacy at the British Heart Foundation.

Tips

HOW TO DEAL WITH:

DR. FEDRIC BRANDT DERMATOLOGIST

Black heads:

Blackheads are caused when dead skin cells combine with the oil glands in your skin to produce sebum. A clay mask will help absorb this oil and unclog your pores.

Sun blemishes and spots:

No products will effectively lighten skin or remove spots without the daily use of sunscreen (SPF 30).

In the morning, go for an antioxidant cream to fight free radical damage and products containing hydroquinone or arbutin to lighten the skin.

At night, creams containing peptide or retinol will help increase collagen production.

Chapped Lips:

Avoid lip licking and choose Vaseline over a more waxy lip balm. Buy moisturizing balms containing natural ingredients with little dye or fragrance and apply throughout the day. Hydrated lips will always look plumper and healthier than dry ones.

GOOD ORAL HEALTH FOR EVERY BREATH YOU TAKE!

For many of us, it does not seem that long ago that tooth loss was our only concern when it came to oral health. Losing teeth was an inconvenience for sure, but one that could be dealt with somewhat by using dentures. Certainly it could not have any other repercussions on our health! Right?

Well research has continued to prove this thought process wrong! Poor oral health has been linked to so many other health issues, such as infections and heart conditions. In addition, there is a conclusive link between poor oral health and lung disease, particularly for the elderly.

At first blush, this may seem a bit hard to believe. However, if you take a moment to stop and think about it, you can see how this might be the case.

The fact is your mouth is full of bacteria. You will never be able to remove it no matter how hard you try. In fact, you do not want to remove all of it because, in a healthy mouth, the bacteria live in a state of balance that can actually be good for our health.

The problem arises when people fail to properly brush, floss or visit their dentist regularly. This will result in a build-up of excessive amounts of bacteria that compromises the balance in the ecosystem of your mouth. The result is periodontal disease.

Dr. Martin LaBoissonniere
Dental Surgeon

With periodontal disease, a vicious circle erupts. Gum tissue will break down at the hands of the bacteria already there, giving more available areas for bacteria to build up and access your blood stream.

Some of these unhealthy bacteria can be inhaled into your lungs. The result could be the development of a respiratory infection in an otherwise healthy lung. For individuals who already suffer from a lung condition, that condition could be exacerbated by the bacteria. The presence of the bacteria may cause a release of certain chemicals that can cause or worsen inflammation in the lungs.

Just think how easy it can be to reduce the risk of compromising the health of your lungs in this case. All you need to do is brush and floss regularly, rinse with an anti-septic mouthwash, and visit your dentist regularly and every breath you take could come that much easier! Add to that eating a healthy diet and, if you smoke, quitting that habit, and your lungs can be that much healthier.

Every breath you take is precious! So make sure you follow these easy steps to keep those breaths strong. Because protecting your lungs is a healthy habit...and healthy habits lead to healthy lives.

The Cowboy Wannabe was smoky, sweet and cheesy. It was filled with grilled sirloin cooked medium rare, roasted peppers blackened on the grill, caramelized onions and goat cheese served Panini-style on a toasted Ciabatta bun.

CHARLES
MACPHERSON.COM

Dear Charles:
I am about to embark on the most important interview of my business career and was wondering if you could provide some helpful tips for a successful interview.

Shaking In My Boots

Dear Shaking In My Boots: Congratulations on your upcoming interview! What a great opportunity. While each interview is always different — corporate culture and individual interview style play a big part — below are some tools I have used successfully.

1. Have a professional-looking resumé and bring multiple copies with you. You may be asked to meet with several people or in front of a group of people. If this is the case, present each person at the table with a copy of your resumé.

2. Be ready to listen. Often, when we get nervous, we don't pay attention to what others are saying.

Always focus on the person speaking, listen carefully and let them complete their question or statement. Only then should you respond.

3. When answering questions make sure to give examples.

Never answer a question like "Tell me about your keyboarding skills?" by simply saying, "They're great."

Instead, demonstrate your skill level with good examples — "I can type 100 words a minute — with no errors. In fact, I used to prepare the management team's weekly reports. They included confidential subject matter that was for management's eyes only."

4. Dress appropriately. To do so, know the culture of the company you are interviewing for. If you are going to an interview at a conservative mutual fund company, dress in a suit and tie.

If you are interviewing for a hip and cool guerrilla-marketing firm, dress in a professional manner that is consistent with the culture of the firm.

Remember, if you dress correctly you will feel comfortable and feeling comfortable will help you to interview successfully!

FIDO DOESN'T NEED COSTUMES

FUN AND FRUGAL

MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

Is Fido busting your budget? The costs of pet ownership can add up; veterinary bills, food, toys and other paraphernalia. Stop buying tutus for your feline and focus on providing for your pet's needs while saving money.

When it comes to food, consult your vet on what's most nourishing and frugal. Trendy expensive food doesn't always translate into nutrition, so research a variety of brands and compare prices. You can save a bundle by buying in bulk and using manufacturer, store or online group coupons. If you belong to a loyalty program at your local grocery store, cash in your points for pet food.

Avoid expensive grooming by washing your own pet, brushing its teeth and hair and cleaning its ears. Special shampoos, nail clippers, tooth and hair brushes can be purchased at any pet store. When you take your animal in for a haircut, trim it short.

Proactively manage your animal's health-care costs by not postponing regular visits to the vet. Regular checkups and appropriate shots will help keep your pet healthy and prevent serious illness. One of the best ways to reduce health-care costs is to ensure your pet receives ample exercise.

Spend wisely and enjoy the inexpensive love and fulfillment pet ownership can bring.

ON MONEY

ALISON GRIFFITHS
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

Wrap me in seaweed, scour me head to foot, slap hot rocks on my back and I am in heaven.

If you haven't guessed, I'm a spa devotee. Happily, I have an esthetician in the family so I get to wallow in mud at a discounted price.

For those not so lucky and eager to save a few bucks, my daughter Claudia, the esthetician, offers some inexpensive but effective at-home treatments.

Here are her top five home spa ideas:

Bath Soak: Combine two tablespoons of Epsom salts with 10 drops of a favourite essential oil — lavender relaxes you, peppermint and eucalyptus are uplifting and help with sinus clearing, geranium is a mood balancer.

Lip Treatment: Using a soft toothbrush, gently scrub lips in a circular motion for one to two minutes — I did it for one, which was plenty. Apply organic honey and leave on as long as possible.

(I advise lying down for this one or the honey dribbles down your chin an onto your shirt — keep fingers handy for mopping and licking.)

Body Scrub: Use three to four tablespoons of brown sugar depending on amount of coverage needed.

Mix in olive oil but don't let it get runny. Add two to three drops of vanilla to scent. Scrub away and shower off.

► Money too tight for a spa day? Get a great home experience with a few expert tips.

Deep conditioning for hair:

Take a small jar or a cup of mayonnaise and half a ripe avocado. Mash the avocado in a bowl and mix in mayo thoroughly. Rub into hair. Put on a shower cap and let sit 20 minutes. Rinse.

This is great to do while you are soaking in the bath. Rinse your hair in the tub water and you'll really gross out your kids.

Face Mask: This is good for exfoliating and unclogging pores. Mix oatmeal and water together until a paste forms. Apply to your face and leave on until dry. Scrub off over the sink and rinse.

Easy. Cheap. And, I have to admit, kind of fun.

Teaching kids about money: Time well spent

► Parents are often the best financial role models

When thinking about those important lessons you must pass on to your children, parents don't often consider money management skills. But lessons about the value of a dollar, saving and investing shouldn't be left to chance. Children's attitudes about money develop early in life, which is why the conversation about money should start at an early age.

These tips will help you get the wheels of saving and investing turning in your child's mind.

1. Use everyday life to talk about money. When you're paying for groceries with your debit card or paying a bill online, explain to your kids what you're doing and how the process works.

2. Introduce an allowance. An allowance is a great way to show children the value of a dollar, and it teaches basic budgeting and money management skills. Suggest they put aside a portion of their allowance for savings. When it's time to move those savings from the piggy bank, open a savings account for your child.

4. Involve your kids in the family finances. Sit down with your kids and show them the family budget. Explain the various expenses, like mortgage payments, and show them how much is set aside for savings and retirement. Teach them the importance of putting aside money for family vacations and big ticket purchases.

Carleton University students asked for an A+ library and now they're getting one to the tune of $23 million, thanks to the Ontario government's long-term infrastructure plan.

The money paves the way for a major overhaul of the university's MacOdrum Library, a project that will be shovel-ready come August. The province is contributing $16 million to the plan, while Carleton is investing $7 million.

Carleton head librarian Margaret Haines said the library facelift would allow Carleton to meet the needs of its growing student population by doubling the seating capacity in MacOdrum Library, as well as providing additional group study rooms, display space and improving facilities for special collections.

Carleton University named in prominent academic exchange program

An associate professor at Carleton University, known for his research into Inuit communities in the Canadian Arctic, has been named to a prestigious academic exchange program aimed at strengthening Canada-U.S. relations.

Dr. Claudio Aporta, who teaches in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, is the recipient of the Fulbright Visiting Research Chair in Canadian Studies at the University of Washington.

As part of the exchange,

Aporta will spend six months in Seattle, from January to July 2012, where he will conduct research on a project entitled The Northwest Passage and the construction of Inuit pan-Arctic Identities. He will examine a network of trails believed to have linked Inuit communities across the North American Arctic.

As part of this announcement, Carleton will host two Fulbright scholars from the United States.

Tech savvy University of Ottawa profs go paper free

Two University of Ottawa geography professors have spearheaded a project that could make grading student papers a paper-free exercise.

Robert McLeman, a professor in the Department of Geography, and Richard Pinet, director of the Centre for e-Learning at the university, teamed up to find a way to use technology to save paper while continuing to maintain a thorough examination of student papers.

They settled on the iPad and its iAnnotate application, which lets professors correct submissions electronically. With the touch of a finger, professors can circle words, draw arrows, add highlighting and even write in comments, opment and testing of new cancer therapies.

The $15.8-million Centre for Innovative Cancer Research (CICR) is equipped with state-of-the-art equipment to analyze cancer cells at the molecular level and develop and test new treatments in laboratory models. It occupies one floor of a newly added wing at The Ottawa

Hospital Cancer Centre.

Up until now, there could be a wait in excess of 10 years before major research discoveries reached patients for testing. However, because of its novel approach to clinical and laboratory research, the centre is expected to reduce that time by half, or more in some cases.

Jury might not hear from Clemens

► Former pitching star's defence continues to sift through jury pool

The lawyer for Roger Clemens gave his strongest hint yet that the former baseball star may not testify in his trial on charges of using performance-enhancing drugs as he pressed potential jurors not to hold Clemens' silence against him.

Several members of the jury pool under selection in Washington federal court said they would weigh evidence from both sides before deciding on a verdict. The judge and Clemens' lawyer had to repeatedly explain the legal principle of innocent until proven guilty and that prosecutors alone bear the burden of proving his guilt.

"Maybe you won't get both sides," Hardin told a government consultant who indicated she wanted to hear Clemens prove his innocence. She eventually said she understood she must start off by assuming he's innocent until the government persuades her otherwise.

"Would you require him to testify to find him not guilty?" Hardin asked another panelist.

"I would like to hear from both sides," she responded.

"That's the point. Most people would," Hardin said, and then explained she can't hold it against him.

"You mean you aren't going to say anything at all?" she asked.

"We may, we may not," he said. Under coaching from Hardin, she eventually said she would find him not guilty if she had a reasonable doubt even without hearing from him.

Clemens watched without speaking during three days of intense questioning of 50 potential jurors that qualified 35 people for potential service.

Clemens is charged with six felonies for telling Congress under oath that he never used performance-enhancing drugs. He stands by the denial, but prosecutors say they can prove that is a lie.

Bautista flames out of derby early

Toronto Blue Jays all-star Jose Bautista was eliminated from the MLB Home Run Derby in the first-round last night with just four home runs.

Bautista — baseball's home run leader with 31 this season — will get a second chance to impress as the starting right-fielder for the American League in the All-Star Game tonight (Sportsnet, 7:30 p.m.).

Canadian Hesjedal still alive amidst tour mayhem

Canadian Ryder Hesjedal is nursing sore ribs and a bruised back and neck. But he's grateful he's made it through the first nine stages of the Tour de France.

"I'm just happy to still be in the race and still be in one piece," he told The Canadian Press during yesterday's rest day. "I just feel for the guys that have gone home with broken bones.

It's not fun."

This year's Tour has been a wild ride with competitors clipped by motorcycles, cars, spectators and guardrails. Rain and mass crashes have added to the mayhem.

"That's the harsh reality of this sport," Hesjedal said. "We don't have that luxury of a rink or a court or a field where it's pretty controlled and you know what you're getting."

Hesjedal has been involved in several crashes himself. The 30-year-old from Victoria went down hard Friday during Stage 7, dropping him from 30th overall to 48th as he lost three minutes six seconds on the leader.

He currently stands 43rd, 9:33 back of leader Thomas Voeckler.
